THE IRIS BORDER

1957

by EVANS IRIS GARDENS — 6690 Wilson Mills Road, Gates Mills, Ohio

Plant A Bit Of Rainbow In Your Garden

Paint A Garden Picture

The beauty and color contrast of established Iris plants in full bloom is amazing. For spectacular effect—mass your color by planting several of one variety together. You can paint lovely landscapes with Iris and at a cost to suit your pocketbook. Once planted, they will grow and increase in your garden, becoming more gorgeous each season.

In laying out your plan, figure on groups of three or six rhizomes of each variety spaced eight to twelve inches apart in the form of triangles. Plant each group as a unit of design with all rhizomes pointing in the same direction to avoid open spaces in the center of your color pattern. By the second year such units will show an abundance of color. Mix your colors well and be sure to have plenty of cream, yellow, pink and light blends to warm up your picture, add a few white, blue, red and brown for desirable contrasts and there you have it. Remember, the ratio of the lighter colors should be about three to one of the darker shades.

No need to buy expensive varieties for this purpose. Many lovely Iris are available for $2.00 or less, see our "Symposium Repeaters" list of eighty-two varieties, group priced for this purpose—page 3.

Oriental poppies, lupins, peonies, day lilies, veronica and many other perennials may be effectively combined with Iris to provide pleasing variations of form and texture.

Come And See

No tongue or pen can adequately describe the scintillating beauty of the individual Iris blossoms. We try to give you some idea of the colors, form and growth habits in our catalog descriptions, but—that's about all! You have to see them in bloom to fully appreciate their loveliness.

You are most cordially invited to visit our display gardens during the period of bloom. Come and spend as much time as you like. Here we have some well developed sample plant groups of nearly 500 varieties growing in beds so you may "look them over" to your heart's content. Bring your camera if you wish. Probably the peak of bloom period for Tall Bearded Iris will be between May 25th and June 5th this year, that is if our weather permits. There will be some bloom of Dwarf Iris during the last week of April with the Intermediate and Table Iris soon after May 1st.

Evans Iris Gardens are located in Mayfield Village which is about 15 miles east of Cleveland Public Square. From there follow U.S. Route 322 (Mayfield Road) to State Route 91 (SOM Center Road). Go north about 1¼ miles to Wilson Mills Road, then east 150 yards.

As we live some 10 miles from the garden we are not always around, except during the peak blooming period.

organic base 10-6-4 about one month before the blooming period.

You should plant the rhizomes as soon as convenient after arrival. No harm to hold them a few days if you heel them in so they do not dry out too much. Sometimes the outer leaves on the rhizomes are quite dry on arrival. DO NOT remove them as the wound which might develop could allow rot to start. The dry leaves will drop off of their own accord when growth starts.

During blooming time we expect to be there each day from 9 A.M. to 6 P.M. At all other times our schedule is usually for Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, same hours. Our home telephone is listed under Cleveland and is Redwood 1-2335. Telephone or write and we'll do our best to meet you. You are always welcome.

New Pricing

In other years, we have shown list prices and a series of discounts for quantity, plus a premium of your selection. Now, we are going to combine all the various allowances into a simple schedule which is listed on page two under the heading of "Terms". As you know, we have always believed that the customer should select his own premiums rather than have us do so. The value of such premiums has been included in our new pricing schedule.

The varieties of bearded Iris we offer have received a thorough testing in our gardens. Our heavy clay soil and strenuous Ohio climate are factors in producing hardy plants that will do well for you. Once planted, they will grow and increase in your garden, becoming more gorgeous each season. Colors cover almost the full range of the rainbow.

For best results you should plant Iris during their dormant or resting period. In this locality, this would be July and August. We start digging about one month after the blooming period, the actual start governed by the weather. As all orders are filled in rotation the earlier orders receive our first attention. Some varieties, including many of the newer ones are in limited supply, and may be sold out early in the season. Plants are never dug while in flower. We believe it is better to wait until the dormant period.

Rhizomes vary in size, depending on the parentage background. We know that by using certain high powered fertilizers, high in nitrogen, we could produce larger rhizomes, but they might also be less firm and be more susceptible to rot. We use bone meal at planting time and one side dressing of an

Buying Aids

The American Iris Society supplies two dependable aids to help you choose Iris: their awards system and the annual popularity poll.

Awards

Each year the American Iris Society makes awards on outstanding Iris in various classifications. For Tall Bearded Iris, these are Honorable Mention (HM), Award of Merit (AM), and Dykes Medal (DM). For Dwarf Iris—Honorable Mention (HM), and Caparne Award (Cap).

The Dwarf Iris Society also makes its own awards — Award of Special Merit (ASM), Blue Ribbon Award (BR), and Dwarf Iris Society Medal (DISM).

The Dykes Medal, Caparne Award and Dwarf Iris Society Medal are the highest awards in their class and only one such award may be made each year. Societies in England and France may also award a Dykes Medal.

Only twelve Awards of Merit are made each year. There is no limit to the number of Honorable Mention awards each year except that a variety must receive votes from at least twelve AIS judges to qualify for the award.

Popularity Polls

Beginning with the year 1940 the American Iris Society has published an annual Symposium listing the 100 most popular Iris for that year. Each member of the Society (about 5000) is asked to send in a list of the twenty-five Iris they like best. The replies, from all parts of the United States, are tabulated and the 100 receiving the most votes make up the Popularity Poll for that year. You may be certain that those listed are not only popular, they must grow well everywhere. The 1956 Popularity Poll is shown on page 4.

Under the heading "Symposium Repeaters" we offer a number of Iris that have appeared in several "Polls", indicating their continuing popularity. For good Iris at reasonable prices we recommend selections from that list, (page 3).

May We Help You?

Perhaps you would like to have us make a selection for you. If so, tell us something of your problem, such as the size of the space you would like to plant, whether exclusively Iris or as part of a perennial border. Indicate any particular preference of colors, and about how much you wish to spend. We'll submit a list for your approval, or just place your order for an assortment and we will select them.

Flower Arrangers

Their enchanting beauty and graceful form make Iris most desirable for stunning floral arrangements. The flowers, flower stalks, buds and leaves are all useful and effective. The fresh orchid-like blossoms with their wide range of colorings may be used alone or combined with other flowers for interesting compositions. To impart a sense of height or ascendancy try a full flower stalk with a fat bud at the top with open flowers below. The leaves may be used fresh or they can be dried in various ways and stored for use later on in dried arrangements. As you search for materials for arrangements, be sure to consider Iris.

Other Good Iris

Many fine tall bearded Iris are priced at one dollar or less. For your convenience we have arranged them in price groups. Here is your chance to get fine Iris at very low prices, as purchases from these groups may be included with others for quantity prices—see "Terms". Listing starts on page 3.

Symposium Repeaters

Every one of these beautiful Iris have won a place in eight or more annual Popularity Polls of the American Iris Society. All eighty-two varieties have stood the test of time and are popular everywhere. Of these, Amigo, China Maid, Great Lakes, Prairie Sunset, Sable and Wabash have placed in all seventeen "Polls". A selection from this list will please you. They are listed in color groups for your convenience.

An Extra Special Price

Select a total value of $4.00 or more, then select 75% more in value, free. For $4.00 you get $7.00 worth; for $10.00 you get $17.50 worth; etc. Minimum order from this group $4.00. NO FURTHER ALLOWANCES.
